INTRODUCTORY NOTE

THE following list grew out of small beginnings. When in the Public Library of the City of Boston I amused myself in noting any broadside issued in Massachusetts between the years 1774 and 1783, on a half-formed scheme of utilizing the items in a study of the civil aspects of the War for Independence. The list was not completed and later, in the Library of Congress, was added to only as occasion offered, on no systematic plan. The growing interest in broadside material has suggested a full check-list, which would be a better guide were it extended to include all broadsides issued in Massachusetts from the earliest introduction of printing into the colony to the year 1800. On consulting Evans' American Bibliography I estimated that double the number there recorded would be ample, but I was soon obliged to alter my opinion, and the result in numbers speaks for itself.

In England the broadside served many purposes in the sixteenth century. From a proclamation by the King, or an act of Parliament, to a notice of a town by-law, authority used it to inform officials and the people of duties and regulations. In controversy, political or personal, the broadside served as a weapon of offence and defence, costing little and lending itself readily to a quiet circulation, difficult to counter or to trace to its source. The news-sheet, out of which came the newspaper of to-day, was probably suggested by the broadside, and soon supplanted the broadside on mere matters of news, but by no means deprived it of a wide field of service. Poets put out ballads which, if popular, proved profitable to printer and hawker; satires, directly or indirectly levelled against abuses, wrongs or individuals, if spiced with wit or humor — the broader the better — gave an opportunity to start a reform, gratify revenge, retort to impudence or smother an opponent in ridicule. The newspaper "extra" of to-day was foreshadowed in the leaflet announcing a battle on land or sea, the death of a royal personage, a voting list on a measure of wide importance, a brutal murder or a dying confession. The collections in the Chetham Library, Manchester, in the Society of Antiquaries of London and in Lord Crawford's library, indicate frequent and effective resort to this form of issue and the various forms it assumed.[1]

The earliest examples of English broadsides that have survived were associated with church and papal authority. The first known printed royal proclamation, issued in the year 1486, contained the papal Bull in favor of Henry VII, known only by an imperfect copy in the Society of Antiquaries of London. There exist a number of plenary indulgences issued under directions of the pope in the opening years of the sixteenth century, but not until 1640 was the earliest known political sheet printed — "A Balade agaynst malycyous Sclaunderers" — which was a defence of the memory of Thomas Cromwell. From that time the use of the broadside becomes increasingly common, and covered a large number of purposes.

Massachusetts did not take kindly to the broadside, though the first issues of its press were in that form of official regulations. It was long before a broadside other than of government or of college was used for personal or mortuary ends. The earliest known issue of the press set up in Cambridge was in the form of a broadside — the "freeman's oath" (1639) — and twenty years passed before the first known sheet of "verses" appeared in 1659. Nearly the same time elapsed before the broadside on smallpox was issued, probably by the aid or direction of government, and that is one reason for doubting "Innocency's Complaint" (1677) as an issue of the New England press. If a genuine issue it stands as the first political broadside in New England, not to be repeated until the coming from England of Benjamin Harris, whose experience at home had given him a thorough knowledge of the use and abuse of broadside literature, an experience he was to repeat in Massachusetts. As the idea of a Massachusetts news-sheet came from him, it is more than probable that he introduced the broadside other than official or mortuary.

For nearly a century this form of publication enjoyed a somewhat uncertain existence, if what has survived offers any test of use and popularity. Government adopted it and in time of war extended its availability, partly because of the quick and ready printing and dispersion of the sheets, partly because of the saving they made in the preparation of reports and returns, both civil and military. Even in this last description of document recognition of its convenience was slow. The ship's paper issued by Randolph in 1688 is the earliest instance, and suggests a foreign usage introduced by the King's commissioner. Law blanks are found about the same time, and merchants used printed bills of lading in 1683. The funeral verses, which were pinned to the pall covering the coffin, represent the earliest personal employment of the broadside, and those on Mrs. Minot (1667) were the first to show the roughly engraved border with its cut suggestive of mortality, for many years in favor. Sewall, for a time censor of the press, was fond of indulging his turn for verse printed on a single leaf, but his example does not appear to have been followed by others. The eighteenth century (1704) had come before the first account of behavior and dying speeches of criminals is found, unadorned with any cut or even with the heavy mourning borders.

[1] Catalogues of these three collections of broadsides have been printed.

The development of illustration by woodcut was not rapid. The colony seal, the work of John Foster, appeared in 1676, and the royal arms on a proclamation issued by Andros and printed by Richard Pierce in 1688, again a direct importation of usage and perhaps of the engraved block itself by a royal representative. But after a single use of the royal arms the colony seal resumed its place on government papers, not to be again displaced until 1692, when Benjamin Harris, the most enterprising printer Boston ever had, brought in the royal arms. Not until 1718 was a cut intended as a true illustration employed, and the experiment could hardly have been profitable, as the second instance is found in 1732, in connection with an execution on Boston Neck. By that time the populace were content to have its palate and eye thus morbidly tickled and each printer had his execution block which could be modified to suit a single or a double hanging. Whether poverty of design, absence of taste or expense of cutting the block retarded the use of engraving in printing is a question not to be answered here; it was long before Hurd, Turner, Pelham, and Revere showed what could be done in that direction. The list points to Thomas Hancock, a bookseller, as the first to use a store-card, and the later one (1748) of Joseph and Daniel Waldo, engraved by James Turner, is on an unexpectedly elaborate scale. To indicate the beginnings and growth of the woodcut designs a few of them are reproduced. The use of the same cut a number of times and at wide intervals of time, even by different printers in different places, offers a curious field for investigation which could only be glanced at in these pages. It would be impossible more than to indicate some of the double uses, without tracing cuts to almanac, primer and chap-book.

Certain subjects of discussion encouraged the issue of leaflets, like the aspirations of Boston for a market, or the conditions following the experiments in bills of credit in the first half of the eighteenth century. But the institution of royal customs commissioners, the stamp act and resulting measures, contributory causes of the War for Independence, produced the greatest activity, still chiefly on the part of government. After the first years of the revolution the need of such an agency of publicity was less and the use rapidly declined. The newspaper improved as a medium of communication, and deprived the broadside of its principal excuse. Proposals of publication came in and apart from official issues represent the most interesting feature. The taste for executions and concomitant scenes died out in Boston but persisted in Worcester and other places. Ezekiel Russell of Salem developed a touch of the sensational in the general make-up of his impressions, intended to be hawked through the country by pedlars and tradesmen. It may be said, however, that the broadside practically ceases to have historical interest after 1800.

The subject of Massachusetts almanacs has been exhaustively treated by Dr. Charles L. Nichols.[1] It is not a little strange that the broadside almanac, found in Pennsylvania at the end of the seventeenth century, was not more generally used in Massachusetts, for there was an undoubted convenience in that form. The earliest instance is the almanac of 1725 and while the sheet almanac is mentioned in advertisements occasionally, it is at the end of the eighteenth century that they become a regular issue, and then by that enterprising printer and publisher, Isaiah Thomas, who was the nearest approach to Benjamin Franklin in ability to measure a market for his publications.[2] But the broadside almanac was practically destroyed by the use to which it was put, and the few known examples are generally in a condition eloquent on the difficulty of preserving them. It is also possible that the use was more general than the few surviving examples would indicate.

[2] Dr. Nichols, in a volume printed by the Club of Odd Volumes, has dealt with Isaiah Thomas and the products of his press in a manner leaving nothing to be added.

One branch of future study will be the ballads circulated in the colony and province. The production of native poetry was not large, nor did it possess a high quality either in theme or in form. The atmosphere of early Massachusetts was not favorable to the cultivation of any of the muses, least of all that of poetry. The Bay Psalm Book (1640) illustrates at once the defect of imagination and the want of appreciation of a proper vehicle for poetic fancy. For generations the form and spirit of that kind of poetry affected the verse-makers, and the wealth of English poetry was almost a sealed book to the colonists. The broadside offers many examples of attempts at versification, and it is entirely of domestic manufacture. The ballad did not come into popular use until after the War for Independence, and never, indeed, attained the popularity it enjoyed in England. James Franklin, the Fleets of Boston and Ezekiel Russell of Salem were early exploiters of the occasional ballad, and later Nathaniel Coverly and his son, of Chelmsford and Boston, issued a large number of ballads, both American and foreign, appealing to a growing market for such products.

In the list of ballads, appended to the list of broadsides, wide latitude has been taken and little regard given to time of issue. One excuse for this lies in the fact that the ballad may originally have been of early date and was reprinted for its supposed interest or novelty. Paper and print are most uncertain guides in determining the period of issue and to undertake to lay down arbitrary limits would end in greater confusion than to print a list of everything found. Completeness is not claimed for this ballad series, and much time, spent to little purpose, would be required to study origin, likeness and variation. The list is offered as tentative, to be developed by some student of that form of sheet literature. It is not a little remarkable, however, that Boston appears to have been the chief centre of production well into the nineteenth century. No other colony or state can show the same number of issues or so catholic a selection.

The difficulty of dealing with this kind of printed material is that the items were printed in small editions, were sold at a low price or given away, and were difficult to preserve. It is doubtful if they were considered at the time of more than passing interest or worth the keeping. Nor have they been deemed worthy of separate mention in a sale catalogue of books until recent years, and I well remember how they were bundled in "lots" and sold for a song. A few collectors of autographs — like Thomas Addis Emmet and Gordon Lester Ford — gathered them to illustrate their letters, but that interest rested with such as were of historical importance. Within ten years the values in the market have steadily risen until they sell for prices out of all proportion to their intrinsic interest, but hardly yet proportioned to their rarity. Nor does any single collection yet exist of such size as to permit an appreciation of their political bearing or literary quality and position in colonial letters. Unquestionably the collection of Massachusetts Historical Society approaches the needs of such an appreciation, for effort has been made to bring to it reproductions of such issues of interest as were not to be found in the libraries of Boston and vicinity. Of 2949 items listed below in the first part of the volume, 1711 are to be found in our cabinet in the original or in a photographed form, or about fifty-eight per cent of the whole. The Society has in addition a number in facsimile form as issued in various publications, and it is within bounds to say that in Boston libraries can be found about everything of importance in this check list.

This material is not easy to locate, for few libraries have separated or catalogued their broadsides as such, and the sheets were more apt to be used as wrappers or to be folded and bound in a volume of pamphlets than to be kept as separate items. To ask a librarian for the broadsides in his keeping was to touch upon an almost unknown subject and it would be hopeless to go through the card catalogue of a library of even moderate size in search of leaflets, as the result would not justify the time required for such a search and much would be overlooked because not included or adequately described in the catalogue.

In a "Catalogue of English and American Chap-Books and Broadside Ballads in Harvard College Library" Mr. Lane has shown the great variety and yet well defined classes of such issues. The only disappointment given by this catalogue of nearly twenty-five hundred items is the small number of American issues. If any library in the land might be expected to have stored on its shelves the curious and the occasional, that of Harvard College should stand first. It is actually first in scholarly collections — the English Chap-Books are an example — but it is either without a corresponding lot of American broadsides, or they are there in a form and in a location where they cannot be reached for examination. Professor George L. Kittredge kindly placed at my disposal a collection of broadside ballads which has been gathered under his direction, and has thus done what was possible to unlock the undefined extent of such treasures in that library. I cannot but feel that my list is more incomplete than could be wished, merely because Harvard College supplied so little outside of its own commencement papers, notices and forms of business. Apart from that possible source, I believe I have covered the most important collections, and am quite willing to leave the supplement to my successor.[1]

Such a list can never be complete, for the earlier issues of the press have so largely disappeared as to leave a gap of unknown extent. This is shown by the bills for printing for the colony submitted in 1689 and 1690 by Green, in which are named a number of items of which the larger part have not been located in any collection. There is no reason also to deny the separate appearance of some, if not all, of the elegiac verses found embodied in chapters of contemporary, or nearly contemporary, history. Morton, in his New Englands Memoriall (1669), for example, prints Peter Bulkley's "Lamentation" for the death of Rev. Thomas Hooker, 1647, two poems by Edward Bulkley, one "A Threnodia" on the death of Rev. Samuel Stone, 1663, and another on the death of Jonathan Mitchill, 1668, and a number of others. While it is possible that these verses circulated in manuscript, yet there is little internal evidence that Morton dealt in manuscript material other than that of Bradford. It is possible, even probable, that these elegies were printed and reached Plymouth in that form. I have listed them on the probability. I do not, however, list those in Mather's sermons and histories, because he was a collector of manuscripts, was in Boston, and therefore in a position to possess or have access to the manuscript.

It is impossible even to conjecture the years of printing for the ballad literature. The imprint like the "Heart and Crown" or "In Cornhill" could apply to a long term of years and only indicates the printer. Where no contemporary record assists in determining the year or period, these ballads will be given alphabetically at the end of the list. If the date of an English issue has been found, it is adopted for the undated American leaflet, to place it in about its period of production, thus suggesting its place in a sequence. Such a practice is arbitrary, but may be justified in default of any other plan.

[1] I have used auction catalogues sparingly. They are very inaccurate in dates and in description, and claim more than can be conceded without a careful examination of the broadside and comparison with like issues.

An example of the problems raised is afforded by the sale by auction of what was believed to be our No. 142, the statement issued on the surrender of Edmund Andros. The copy of the broadside went into the library of Mr. William Gwinn Mather, and on his courteously sending a photostat reproduction it was found to be the same text as No. 142 but entirely different in type, being in black letter.

With such difficulties to overcome it is certain that this list cannot be considered as free from criticism. Some limitations were imposed at the beginning. Maps, or engravings or legal blanks have been excluded, except in a few instances and for special reasons. Maps are not proper subjects for such a list and are better dealt with in lists prepared by specialists in maps. A few engravings have been admitted, either because of their interest, like the card on spermaceti candles (208) engraved by Hurd, the unlocated "caricatura" (1344) by the same hand, or because they were pertinent, like the store-card of Hancock, the bookseller, or engraved commissions, like those under Bernard and Hutchinson. Law blanks came late into general use but rapidly increased in number and variety, few printers not printing what would be in steady demand and a source of small yet continuing profits. A careful study of the various changes in language and form might possibly suggest something of value to the historian of legal practice, but of no interest to any but the antiquary. The earliest occurrence of a form is noted, with occasional mention of later varieties. Where the name of the printer is found it is given, for thus a clue with which to identify other issues of the same press may be suggested. One exception has been made in the "Oaths of Allegiance." Being without date as a rule, those that bear a year — the year in which the signers took the oath — will serve to place in its proper time a like undated one. What appeared regularly at stated intervals are only occasionally listed. The annual law apportioning taxes throughout the colony and state, precepts to elect representatives, tickets to balls and assemblies and lottery tickets, are examples of what are either not listed at all, or given when found, or only once to establish the form. Proclamations appointing days of fasting or thanksgiving rest upon another basis, often giving historical information of the special occasion.

The selection of items has not been entirely consistent, but the proper rule of inclusion would be difficult to frame and more difficult to apply. The definition of a broadside is not fixed, though Mr. Evans in the introduction to his fifth volume[1] has undertaken to discriminate. In the present instance the word has been broadly used, intended to apply to almost any issue of the press which has not a proper title page, whether printed on a single leaf or on a number of leaves, whether carrying page numbers and signature-marks or without such usual indications of a pamphlet or volume. It is more serviceable to note this stray and fleeting product of the press, often unrecorded elsewhere, in too great fulness, for in that way the labors of other bibliographers are supplemented. Further, the list in its original intention and final performance is tinged with personal motives, serving as an aid in special undertakings now in process of completion. If too much has been included much has undoubtedly been omitted, and one of the leading objects of the publication is to call out from their hiding places the unknown or at least the undiscovered issues of a like character.

The frontispiece to this volume is made up of two fragments of a papal indulgence printed at Madrid, February 2, 1738, and bearing the (printed) signature of Cardinal Gaspar de Molina y Oviedo. These fragments had been used as covers to two manuscript sermons by a New England clergyman. The history of this indulgence is told under No. 875 on page 121 of this volume. The ballad there mentioned is printed on the lower half of the indulgence and the text for that portion is complete. I have not located a complete text of the upper half and the reproduction is made in the hope that at some time a full example of this document, spoils of war, may be found.

I acknowledge my indebtedness to the late Nathaniel Paine, of Worcester, and to Charles Evans, compiler of the American Bibliography.[2] Pioneers in this field, they did not go far in covering it. Intensive cultivation was needed to obtain the best results. I have received many favors from libraries, the custodians of which have thrown open their stores freely and with every privilege and courtesy. The list is practically that of the libraries named in the "Key" on page 2, and my sense of obligation is as great to the small as to the large libraries.

[2] See also the list of "Early American Poetry to 1820" in the New York Public Library, made by Mr. John C. Frank and printed in the Bulletin of that Library, xxi. 517.

An essential factor has been the photostat, which has enabled a closer examination of widely separated items to be made, developing hitherto undiscovered differences and adding materially to the number of issues known. Instances of this multiplication may be seen in the issues of Father Abdy's Will (1730), broadsides issued on the death of George Whitefield (1770) and those on Levi Ames (1773). This comparison has also permitted printers to be identified, and under a more extended application, will throw some light upon the history of printing in Massachusetts.

Mr. F. W. Coar, of New York, has courteously permitted me to use blocks of some broadsides which have passed through his hands — the inserts in this volume. The illustrations in the text are copied from the originals and tend to prove the slow advance in wood engraving in the century covered by the list.

THE

Little-Compton Scourge:

Or,

The Anti-Courant.

THE Acute Defoe [illegible] wittily obſerv[illegible] Bequeſt of [illegible] which is ſo equally [illegible] happily diſtributed among the Species, as the Intellectual Talent. The Diſtribution is univerſally well-liked of; you never hear any Man murmur and repine at the Fates, for his own ſcanty Allowance. Every Man bleſſes himſelf that he is no Fool, and thanks his Stars, that he does not want Wit. So that this one Inſtance muſt forever ſtand as a grand Exception to the general Maxim, No Man is content with his own Condition. Self-conceit ſupplies the Want of Senſe; and fancied Wit yields a Man as full Conſolation as a true conſciouſneſs of real and extraordinary Underſtanding. It is well, This is the Caſe of the miſerable and dull Courant, who, had he a true ſight of himſelf, and what a wretched Figure he makes in writing, would quarrel with all Mankind for having more Wit than himſelf.

Wit! what is that? Pray, from whence came it? What Age may it be of? Was it bred at College, or in an Apothecary's Shop, Sir. —— Pray, Sir, don't be angry at theſe Enquiries; for it is none of yours or your Families Pedigree or Education we are enquiring for. You have no acquaintance with it yet; you muſt live near twice twenty and three Years more, e'er you can court ſo mortal an Enemy into your Favour, and woo ſo delicate and coy a Gueſt into your rude and mortal Embraces.

But yet that you may know the Stranger when you have (if it be poſſible, which I much doubt) a chance ſight of her, Let me tell you in the Name of an Apothecary, ſhe is cloathed in a Latin Dreſs, and that ſhe is much for a pertinent and nice Patching her unfortunately tattered Cloaths, with the beſt and brighteſt Pieces from your true Roman Authors. As for Example, Barba non Facit Philoſophum. Qua genus aut flexum variant, quacunque novatio, &c. Propria qua Maribus tribuuntur MASCULA dicas.

And further, if ever it ſhould be your good, though doubtful Fate to have a glance View of her, obſerve her Gate, watch her Motions, till ſhe is out of Sight, then to one She'll tread in Metre, (for ſhe is a pretty Antick Dame too) and you ſhall find pieces of Hexameters and Pentameters beat out in Time. Both of them; Vox prætereaque nihil, and, Vox & prætera nihil.

As ſoon as ever you have arrived at ſo much Knowledge of her, if ſhe flirts from you after all, hallow out for your Life, and tell her that you know Mr. Bickerſtaff (for you are a Man uſed to it and muſt have a Lie) and that he was a pure Cunning [illegible] That you tried to come into the World juſt as he did; and ſhould you perſwade her you are as much like him as Lackey and Link Boy to Mr. Gentleman, you are well off.

But, Sir, what did you ſay your Age was? Some odd Years, and a few Days under twice twenty three. Good Sir, your writing betrays you in ſome Odd Year of your Age. Others will more readily think, by your Raw Scribbling, that Years had not much to do here, and that Days better became your Reckoning.

You are confident of Readers and good Succeſs with them. Never a Jack without a Jill. To your comfort you have a dull Parity of Readers ready to your Hand, [illegible] been plagued for Want of Works fit for their Reading. And now the poor Souls are blind [illegible] they put Confidence in your dull and neceſſitous Fidelity. Soar now and then, Mr. Gruſſtreet; but do not be two frequent in your Flights, and they'll promiſe to Keep you in Sight.

Take Courage, poor Courante, and don't diſturb your ſelf with Fooliſh Fears, of creating Impatience in your Gentle Readers. It would be hard to make Gentleneſs become Impatient. Never fear, you will find good Quartet from the Gentle; and till you poſſeſs the Talent of Satire (which ſuch an innocent Creature as you can never be guilty of) you may keep in with the Men of Paſſion and Reſentment. Your harmleſs Lathes, which rather tickle them into a Laugh at the awkward Flogger, than gaul them in the fore Place, will never diſpleaſe them.

But to be ſure get your ſelf Diſſected (according to your Promiſe) that the World may have a full View of your Outward Man, for you are a Miſtictious Piece of Skin, that cannot diſcloſe your Exteriors without the Help of Anatomy. And, Sir, as for the Diſſection for the Diſcovery of the inward Man, the World thinks it needleſs, for that your Works declare, your Guts are in your Brains.

However, not to make you STOP SHORT three Times (as in your late Advertiſement) we will permit you to let us have every Fortnight an Account of your Robuſt Body, and your Cloudy Mind.

And do not fail to give an elaborate and impartial Account of the good Company of a certain Set of Men; otherwiſe your Silence in this Matter, may give the World ſhrewd Grounds of Suſpicion, of what the excellent, immortal, and profoundly learned Dugard (for we muſt quote, you know, the beſt Latin Authors) once ſaid of the Goat, which here is no Catechiſm, Vir Gregis, ipſe CAPER decruentat.

Go on, Monſieur Courant, and proſper; Fear not to pleaſe your ſtupid Admirers, which will be an eaſy Task, if you will but conſult your own heavy Genius, and write in your native Stile, of which you have been ſo ſharp and diſcerning as to give us the apt and proper Character, VERY, VERY DULL!

I ſhould, Sir, be unjuſt and defraud you of your due, if I did not ſend you a little Rythme (with ſmall Variation, from a candid, ſagacious, and celebrated Author) in Recompence of your wondrous witty Triplet.

Go on, [illegible] labour in Spite
Of [illegible] your Stars to write.

Zachariah Touchſtone.

Little-Compton,
Aug. 10. 1721.

P. S. It were to be wiſhed the Seleƈt Men, for the Peace of the Publick, would oblige Mr. Courante to be, Homo unius Negotii.

Quare, Whether the Term [Extrafundamental] may be allowed. The younger Scaliger is of Opinion, Extraground'ed, is a word of better Import. Take Notice, the candid Concombius, and the celebrated Scornfenſus do not ſcruple to declare that both the former Criticiſms are EXTRAGROUNDLESS.

Advertisement in the Boston News-Letter, January 4, 1720. I have not found an example of such an issue of the sheet. In the next number of the newspaper Campbell added that the plan proposed was also "for the advantage of the Post-Office."

Sewall's Diary (III. 250) settles the question of printing. "The Govr. in Council said he had met with a Libel; producing it; it appeared to be [Colman's]

Whereas a laudable Custom hath of long Standing prevail'd in this Province of recommending, in the Publick Papers, the Virtuous Actions, blameless Lives, and christian Deportment of Deceas'd Persons, to the worthy Imitation of the Sorrowful Living; and as the same, (we hope) has been attended with a Wish'd for Success, to the Instruction, and Edification of the Surviving Generation. J. Langdon Sibley printed the poems with some historical and biographical notes in the Cambridge Chronicle, November 18, 1854, and reprinted his contribution in a pamphlet, in an edition of fifty copies for private distribution. He produces evidence that John Seccomb (1708–1792) of the class of 1728, was the author. Matthew Abdy, the proper spelling of the name, was born about 1650, and became bedmaker and sweeper in 1718. His third wife was named Ruth, and she died in 1762. The poem appeared in the Gentleman's Magazine, II. 770 (May, 1732), without the last four lines, beginning, "Thus Father Abbey left his Spouse." It also appeared in the London Magazine. Of the author of the letter of courtship Mr. Sibley appears to have had no knowledge. That poem also crossed the ocean and appeared in the Gentleman's Magazine, II. 821 (June 1732), and, with an interpolated verse, in the London Magazine, August, 1732. Both poems were printed in the Massachusetts Magazine, November, 1794. "Father Abbey's Will" was in recent times set to music, dedicated to the Graduates of Harvard University and published by Oliver Ditson. The lines of introduction are dated 1730. I add the known issues of the "Will," but there are no means of determining the years of imprint.

Curwen personally knew. Bot in a street in

A PROCLAMATION for a general FAST.

FORASMUCH as this Government has with great Expence and Labour raised and fitted out a large Body of Troops, and equipped a considerable Naval Force for an Expedition against the French at Cape-Breton, which Forces are now, thro' the Favour of Divine Providence, embarked, and have taken their Departure from this Place; And forasmuch as all our Hopes of Success in this important Enterprize ought to be placed in the gracious Prefence of Almighty GOD, to give Wisdom and Conduct to our Officers, and Resolution and Courage both to Officers and Soldiers, to preserve our Forces from Sickness and other Disasters, and to govern all Accidents and Occurrences so as to render them favourable to our Designs; And as it is our indispensible Duty by Prayer and Supplication with penitent Confession of our Sins earnestly to implore the gracious Interposition of divine Providence, that it would please GOD to be on our Side and fight our Battles, and grant us Success and Victory;

I have therefore thought fit with the Advice of his Majesty's Council, to appoint Thursday the Fourth Day of April next, to be observed throughout this Province as a Day of Fasting and Prayer, hereby calling upon Ministers and People, as well in their private Devotions, as in their publick Assemblies, with a truly humble and contrite Spirit to confess and bewail the many and great Offences of this People, whereby GOD may be justly provoked to blast all our Designs in this Enterprize, and bring upon us the most heavy and wasting Calamities; and to cry mightily to him, that he would in his abundant Mercy through CHRIST, forgive all our Trespasses and make us a religious and reformed People, and thereby prepare us for all temporal Prosperity: And more especially, that they do under a deep Sense of the universal Providence of Almighty GOD, whereby he governs all Causes and Events according to his own wise and sovereign Pleasure, with humble and importunate Prayers beseech him to keep Sin, the accursed Thing that provokes his just Indignation, out of the Camp and Fleet; and that he would graciously order all the Circumstances of this Enterprize in Mercy to this People; and that he would prosper and succeed it for the future Safety and Prosperity of This and the other British Provinces and Colonies, for His is the Power, the Glory, and the Victory: And after all, humbly & dutifully to submit this great Affair to his Wise and sovereign Determination, that so in all Respects this may be such a Fast as GOD has required, and a Day of Atonement and not of further Provocation; And that it would also please GOD to give Success to the Arms of his Majesty and his Allies in the Operations of the ensuing Summer; And that Peace may be restored both in Europe and in America, And that the universal Kingdom of our Lord and Saviour JESUS CHRIST, the Prince of Peace, may prevail in the World, and the whole Earth be filled with His Glory. And all servile Labour and Recreations are strictly forbidden on the said Day.

Given at the Council-Chamber in BOSTON, the Twenty-fifth Day of March, 1745. In the Eighteenth Year of the Reign of our Sovereign Lord GEORGE the Second, by the Grace of GOD, of GREAT-BRITAIN, FRANCE and IRELAND, KING, Defender of the Faith, &c.

By His EXCELLENCY

WILLIAM SHIRLEY, Esq;

Captain-General and Governour in Chief, in and over His Majesty's Province of the Massachusetts-Bay in New-England.

A PROCLAMATION.

WHEREAS His Majesty has been graciously pleased to order a Number of Troops, under the Command of the Honourable Lieutenant-General St. Clair, to proceed from Great-Britain to Louisbourg, with a sufficient Convoy of Men of War, and with them a great Part of His Majesty's Troops now in Garrison at Louisbourg, and also such Troops as shall be levied for that Purpose in His Majesty's Colonies in North-America, to attempt the immediate Reduction of Canada; and has signified His Royal Pleasure to Me, and to the Governours of the several Provinces and Colonies of Virginia, Maryland, Pensilvania, New-Jersey, New-York, Connecticut, Rhode-Island and New-Hampshire, by Letters dispatch'd from his Grace the Duke of Newcastle, Principal Secretary of State, that Dispositions should be forthwith made for the raising as many Men within this and the above-mention'd Governments as the Shortness of the Time will admit, for proceeding on the said Expedition;

AND whereas the Great and General Court of this Province have, with the utmost Chearfulness and Unanimity, voted to give all necessary and proper Encouragement for Three Thousand Volunteers that shall enlist into His Majesty's Service in this Expedition;

In Obedience therefore to His Majesty's said Commands;

I have thought fit, With the Advice of his Majesty's Council, to issue this Proclamation, in order to make known His Majesty's gracious Intentions and Declarations for the Encouragement of all able-bodied effective Men that are inclined to enlist themselves into his Service in the said Expedition, together with the further Encouragement which is offered by this Government, viz. That the said Volunteers will be under such Officers as I shall appoint; That they will be immediately entitled to his Majesty's Pay, the Officers from the Time they shall engage in his Majesty's Service, and the Soldiers from the respective Days on which they shall be enlisted; That if Provision cannot be made of Arms and Cloathing for them, by reason of the Shortness of the Time, a reasonable Allowance will be made them in Money for the same; That they shall be entitled to a Share of the Booty that shall be taken from the Enemy, and shall be first back to their several Habitations, when this Service shall be over, unless any of them shall desire to settle elsewhere.

AND for the further Encouragement of all Volunteers that shall engage in this Service, It is provided, That they shall receive Thirty Pounds in Bills of Credit of the old Tenor, as a Bounty; as also for each Man a good Blanket, and a Bed for every Two Men; the said Bounty to be paid upon their Enlistment, and the Blankets and Beds at the Time of their Embarkation, or Proceeding on the said Expedition: And that all such Volunteers as shall proceed on this Expedition, shall be exempted from all Impresses for two Years after their Return.

Given at the Council-Chamber in BOSTON, the Second Day of June 1746. In the Nineteenth Year of the Reign of Our Sovereign Lord GEORGE the Second, by the Grace of GOD of Great-Britain, France and Ireland, KING, Defender of the Faith, &c.

By Order of His Excellency the Governour, with the Advice of the Council,
J. WILLARD, Secr.

W. Shirley.

Of a worthy London Prentice my purpose is to speak,

Printed on the back of a Spanish indulgence. "In 1748, during the war between England and Spain, a Spanish ship, captured by an English cruiser, was sent into Boston. Among other articles in the captured vessel, were several bales of Bulls or Indulgencies, issued by the Pope, and printed on one side of a small sheet. Fleet purchased a large quantity of them at a low price, and printed songs and ballads on the back of them. In the Evening Post he advertised them as follows: — 'Choice Pennsylvania Tobacco Paper to be sold by the Publisher of this Paper, at the Heart and Crown [in Cornhill, Boston]; where may also be had the BULLS or Indulgencies of the present Pope Urban VIII. either by the single Bull, Quire, or Ream, at a much cheaper Rate than they can be purchased of the French or Spanish Priests, and yet will be warranted to be of the same Advantage to the Possessors." Buckingham, Reminiscences, I. 142. This is the only example I have found. The advertisement will be found in the Boston Evening-Post, November 7, 1748.

The | Act to be in Force from and after the 31st of March, 1750. Boston, Printed and Sold by Rogers and Fowle in Queen-Street. 1750.

It is dated Jan. 1, 1749, 50. Evans, 6495. BPL. MHS

A publication in book form (price two shillings old Tenor) was announced in the Boston Weekly News-Letter, January 4, 1750, and January 25 a rival publication, to be sold by Samuel Kneeland and Timothy Green, Jr., was announced, with what was apparently a leaflet: "With an Example, and its operation, . . . fitted to the meanest capacities, in a small Page for the Pocket, or the Pocket Book." This may, however, refer to the size of the volume — a 16mo. In the same issue of the News-Letter Rogers and Fowle repeated their announcement and added: "N. B. The said Table is printed in such a Manner as is convenient to paste up in People's Houses, for their constant use." A critic pointed out in the Boston Evening Post, January 29, 1750, some errors, which led the Rogers and Fowle to explain in the News-Letter of February 1 and add to the reply the following: "☞ The true and plain Table (which has been published by Rogers and Fowle, on one side of a Sheet for conveniency of pasting up in Houses, Shops and Warehouses for constant Use) in a few Days will likewise be printed in a small Fold, convenient for the Pocket-Book." March 1, 1750, the News-Letter announced the publication by Rogers and Fowle of "A Correct minute Table to bring old Tenor into lawful Money, . . . and is a Supplement to the Table already published by said Rogers and Fowle." The price was two shillings old Tenor, one too high for a broadside, and I believe this to be the following item.

The Dying Speech of Old Tenor,

On the 31ſt of March 1750; being the Day appointed for his Execution.
With a Word of Comfort to his diſconſolate Mourners.

Kind Reader,

'Tis cannot be inſenſible how I have been uſed, and in what Manner for three Weeks paſt, and what different Sentiments ſome have entertain'd concerning me, calling me Bomatee, Old Stuff, and many other hard and opprobious Names in the Publick Prints; but I was handled in ſo rough a Manner, laſt Wedneſday, Thurſday and Friday, being the three laſt Days before my Execution, that I catch'd a prodigious Cold, and on Friday Night was oblig'd to retire, having the Head-ach to a great Degree; but conſidering how ſhort my Time was, and the great Diſtreſs of ſome of my beſt Friends, who appeared to me very Dull and Melancholy, was determin'd to leave them the following Legacy, for their own Peruſal, and their Children after them; which I penn'd in Part after Nine o'Clock, and finiſh'd the next Morning early, knowing that it would be a very buſy Day with me. After I had taken a little Breakfaſt, which lay very hard in my Stomach, I was hurry'd about from one Part of the Town and Province to another in a moſt violent Manner, ſo that by One o'Clock, I could ſcarcely fetch my Breath: After Dinner (having had a very poor Appetite, knowing the doleful Scene was not far off) even ſome of my beſt Friends began to be ſhy of me, threatning to ſhut up their Shops, becauſe I was thrown in upon them ſo faſt. About half an Hour before Sun-ſet, thoſe who were very fond of ME ONCE, ran about Town as if they were diſtracted, for fear I ſhould die in their Hands, and were as glad to get rid of me as if I had been a Rattle-ſnake; which brought to my Mind the Fable of an aged Hound being in purſuit of his Game, caught it, but could not hold it, becauſe his Teeth were worn out; for which his Maſter corrected him very ſeverely---The Dog begged that he might not be puniſhed, alledging that he was old; The Moral of which is, Many People are ſo ungrateful as to take no Notice of the Ninety-nine good Turns, which they have received, if the Hundredth is denied them.

WHat doleful Cries are theſe that fright my Senſe!
Sad as the Groans of dying Innocence.
The killing Accents now more near approach,
And does moſt Hearts with Grief and Wonder touch.
It makes a mighty great and doleful Sound
Spread far and wide, enlarges all around.
My Name Old Tenor is, 'tis true, I own,
And by that Name have many Years been known.
But what alas! is all this Stir and Noiſe?
Have I not been quite juſt unto your Cauſe?
Indeed I've help'd the Poor Man in Diſtreſs,
And eas'd the Widow and the Fatherleſs.
I've built you Houſes, for to keep you warm,
And bought you Cattle for to plow your Land.
When in Diſtreſs, a helping Hand I've been,
And purchas'd Things to carry you to your End.
When you've been ſick, I've done the beſt I cou'd
To eaſe your Mind, and do juſt as you wou'd;
When you've been parch'd with Fevers violent,
I to the Doctors for you have been ſent.
When your Guts grumbl'd and your Heads have ak'd
I then ſtood ready for to eaſe your Pate.
When you no Breeches had, or Coat to wear,
You conſtantly did unto me repair;
I bought you Caps, I bought you Shoes likewiſe,
And many a Time no Doubt have ſav'd your Lives.
When Wars aroſe, and En'mies you purſu'd,
To me you ran for ſhelter from your Foes.
I bought you Guns, and Drums, and Swords indeed,
And ev'ry Thing that Mortals ſtood in need.
When Frenchmen unto you were coming in,
I then ſtood ready for to be your Friend.
When your Hearts fail'd, I purchas'd you good Cheer,
Which made you bold, and on the Spaniards ſneer.
When all your Trade was in Stagnation lain,
I then rous'd up, which was not quite in vain.
I rais'd an Army, to Cape-Breton ſent,
Who took that Place, which made you all content:
Rejoicings great you then was pleas'd to make,
Altho' it made the Frenchmen's Hearts to ake.
In ſhort, great Things I always have been doing,
And conſtantly for me you have been wooing.
Should I recount the good Deeds I have done,
The World perhaps could find not ſuch a one.
But after all, what ſtrange Reward muſt have,
Among ſome Men, unwilling I ſhould live;
Or any more among you for to breathe.
This Day my Execution's to commence
And I'm to be for ever baniſh'd hence.
Ah! cruel Fate, 'tis hard indeed to tell
The Crowds of Men, of my unhappy end,
Mourners I have in Numbers great and ſmall,
Who gladly my Death-Warrant would recall:
But ah! poor Souls! I pity you from my Heart,
But that, alas! won't eaſe you of the Smart.
I have been hug'd, I have been tore in two,
And ſerv'd the worſt of Mortals, it is true;
But then Compaſſion on me you have had,
And ſtamp'd me new, which made my Heart quite glad.
How nice and carefully have I been tuck'd,
Where little pretty Infants lie and ſuck.
But what comes next to that; I'm plainly told
I am to be exchang'd for heavy Gold.
The DOLLARS are on Monday next to riſe,
And then I doubt not ſome will looſe their Eyes.
Theſe pretty Baubles you will turn and twiſt
And then ſecurely lay them in your Cheſt.
But I, alaſs, after you've had your Games,
Muſt be thrown up in Heaps and put in Flames.

PART II. A Word of Comfort.

But come my Friends, your Fate is hard, 'tis true,
One Word of Comfort I will ſay to you:
After my Name by ſome is wholly loſt,
I ſhall be hov'ring all around the Coaſt.
If in Diſtreſs by ſome you ſhould be brought,
Come unto me in Hampton with your Lot.
Bring up your Goods unto Connecticut,
And there I'll make you grow quite plump and fat.
If theſe ſhould fail, to Providence Repair,
And there my Friends you all ſhall have your ſhare.
Three Governments I've in Poſſeſſion now,
They all me mind, and great Reſpect do ſhow.
My Land is good, my Cedars large and tall,
And thoſe who come to me ſhall never fall.
All thoſe who have my En'mies been indeed,
Will be convinc'd that I have them reliev'd.
Their Thoughts are high, their Looks are mighty great
And do ſeem pleas'd at my imagin'd Fate.
Shortly they'll ſee how I in Triumph vie,
And then with Sorrow they'll look dull and cry.
Rejoice my Friends, rejoice once more I ſay,
Altho' this is my Execution Day.
After I'm dead, take Care of my Remains,
And when I riſe, will pay you for your Pains;
Keep up your Hearts, tho' Scoffers do rejoice;
And in a little Time you'll hear my Voice.
Altho' this Day looks dark, and Hearts are ſad,
Mind not the Frowns of wicked Men who're glad;
Shortly they'll ſay, Old Tenor come again,
But then alas! 'twill be too late for them.

Dated in BOSTON, which has been the chief Place of my Reſidence for many Years, which I believe will be very ſenſible of my Departure, this Thirty-firſt of March 1750.

By His EXCELLENCY

WILLIAM SHIRLEY, Esq;

Captain-General and Governour in Chief, in and over his Majesty's Province of the Massachusetts-Bay in New-England.

A PROCLAMATION for a general FAST.

IT being our incumbent Duty to acknowledge GOD in all our Ways, and to commit all our Affairs, both publick and private, to his gracious Direction; and being bound, in a special Manner, to implore the Divine Blessing when we are engaged in Concerns of great Importance;

I have therefore thought fit, with the Advice of his Majesty's Council, and at the Desire of the Assembly, to appoint Thursday the Twentieth of March next, to be observed throughout this Province, as a Day of Fasting and Prayer; hereby calling upon Masters and People religiously to solemnize the same, by penitent Confession of their Sins, and deep Humiliation for the growing Depravity and Dissolution of Manners amongst us, with earnest Supplications to Almighty GOD, that he would be pleased to grant us the free Pardon of our Sins, and that a general Amendment and Reformation may prevail in all Orders of Men; and that he would remove the present Tokens and Effects of his righteous Displeasure against us, and prevent those more severe Judgments, which our Sins have deserved, and which in the Aspects of Divine Providence we are warned to prepare for; and also, that it would please our merciful GOD to confer upon us all needful Blessings; Particularly, that he would long continue the precious Life of our Sovereign Lord the KING, and direct and prosper the Counsels and Administrations of his Government, for the general Prosperity of the Kingdoms and Dominions under his happy Rule; and particularly, for maintaining the just Rights of his Crown, and the Properties and Possessions of his good Subjects, against the Invasions of foreign Powers, and also for continuing and strengthening a general Peace among the Nations; That GOD would graciously preserve and bless their Royal Highnesses the PRINCE of Wales, the PRINCESS DOWAGER of Wales, the DUKE, and the other Branches of the ROYAL FAMILY; That he would be favourable to our Land, and give his gracious Influence and Guidance to the Government of this and his Majesty's other Colonies in NORTH-AMERICA, that they may be led into such Measures (more especially at this Conjuncture) as may be effectual for their mutual Security and Defence; That GOD would in great Mercy preserve Peace upon our Sea-Coasts and Inland-Frontiers, and frustrate all Designs to disturb and violate the same, so that no Weapon formed against us may prosper; That he would restore Health where it is wanted, and continue it where it is enjoyed. That he would grant us suitable Seasons in every Part of the Year for procuring a plentiful Increase of the Fruits of the Earth; That he would protect and succeed the Navigation, Trade and Fishery of this Province, and give his Blessing to the Works of our Hands; and that he would commiserate the Case of our Captives and restore their Liberty: And, above all, That he would defend and spread the Holy Religion of our Lord and Saviour JESUS CHRIST, and that the Power of Godliness may every where prevail, and the whole Earth be filled with his Glory: And all servile Labour and Recreations are forbidden on the said Day.

Given at the Council-Chamber in Boston the Twenty-seventh Day of February 1755, in the Twenty-eighth Year of the Reign of our Sovereign Lord GEORGE the Second, by the Grace of GOD, of Great-Britain, France and Ireland, KING, Defender of the Faith, &c.

By Order of the Governour, with the Advice and Consent of the Council,

J. Willard, Secr'y.

W. Shirley.

Lieutenant-Governour and Commander in Chief in and over His Majesty's Province of the Massachusetts-Bay in New-England.

A PROCLAMATION for a publick FAST.

WHEREAS Almighty GOD is pleased still to chastize us with the grievous Judgment of War, and to permit the unjust Invasions of the British Territories in North-America, as well as in other Parts of the World, by the French, who have employed the Indians in these Parts, as Instruments of their Cruelty in shedding the Blood of Multitudes of Women and Children, as well as Men, upon the Frontiers of these Colonies, with such Circumstances of Barbarity as are most abhorrent not only to the true Spirit of Christianity, but even to Humanity itself; And whereas the Preparations now made and making against us by our French and Indian Enemy loudly admonish us of our Danger as also of our Duty, to acknowledge the righteous Hand of God in these Dispensations of his Providence, and to seek a speedy Reconciliation to Him; and the Time of Action of the Forces raised by this and the neighbouring Governments for recovering their just Rights out of the Hands of their Enemies being probably very near, the Voice of Providence doth evidently call upon us to seek to GOD for his Blessing upon our important Undertakings, without which we have no Ground to hope for Success;

I have therefore thought fit, with the Advice of his Majesty's Council and at the Desire of the Assembly, to appoint Thursday the Twenty-second of this Instant July to be observed thro' out this Province as a Day of publick Fasting and Prayer; hereby calling upon Ministers and People devoutly to solemnize the same by the deepest Humiliations for our heinous Offences, by which we have highly incensed the Divine Majesty against us, and have caused him to hide his Face from us, and to punish us with the sore Calamities of War: and also to implore his Commiseration of us, in our present Distresses, and mercifully direct in the Forming and Executing of our military Enterprises, and thereby to deliver us out the hands of our Enemies, and enable us to recover our Rights and Properties, by them unjustly invaded; that he would keep all Sin out of our Camps, as well as from the whole Community, and make us a penitent and reformed People; that he would inspire our Officers with Conduct and Resolution, and our Soldiers with Faithfulness and Courage; and that, as the Captain of our Salvation, he would lead them on to Success and Victory; That he would graciously preserve the important Life of our Sovereign Lord the KING with all the Branches of his Royal House; and direct his Counsels and prosper his just Arms for restoring and preserving the Peace of Europe; and that the Divine Promises and Predictions of the Universal and Spiritual Reign of our Lord and Saviour JESUS CHRIST, the Prince of Peace, may be speedily accomplished.

And all servile Labour and Recreations are forbidden on the said Day.

Given at the Council Chamber in Boston, the Tenth Day of July 1756, in the Thirtieth Year of the Reign of our Sovereign Lord GEORGE the Second, by the Grace of GOD of Great-Britain, France and Ireland, KING, Defender of the Faith, &c.

By Order of His Honour the Lieutenant Governour, with the Advice of the Council,

S. Phips.

The second poem is by Thomas Paine and has been reprinted many times. Conway states that it was written in 1759 and is said to have been sung at the Headstrong Club, Lewes, England, but its first appearance in print was in the Pennsylvania Magazine, March, 1775, with music. It is noted here because of the event it commemorates, but other issues will be found in the Ballad list, infra. Adapted to the death of General Warren, it was printed in the Independent Chronicle, October 9, 1777.

By His EXCELLENCY

THOMAS POWNALL, Esq;

Captain-General and Governor in Chief, in and over His Majesty's Province of the Massachusetts-Bay in New-England, and Vice-Admiral of the same.

A PROCLAMATION.

IT having pleased Almighty GOD to give the most remarkable Success to His Majesty's Arms this Year in America, more particularly in the Reduction of Quebeck (the Capital of Canada) and the adjacent Country;

I HAVE therefore thought fit, with the Advice of His Majesty's Council, to issue this Proclamation, appointing Thursday the Twenty-fifth Day of October Instant, to be observed as a Day of Public Thanksgiving throughout this Province, to commemorate these distinguishing Instances of the Divine Goodness ----- Hereby recommending it to Ministers and People to unite in their respective Churches and Congregations, in rendering to Almighty GOD their grateful Praises for these undeserved Favours; and in presenting their humble Prayers and Supplications for His most gracious Majesty King GEORGE, the Prince of Wales, and the rest of the Royal Family; and for the Continuance of the Divine Blessing upon His Majesty's Government, and upon His Arms.

GIVEN at the Council-Chamber in Boston the Thirteenth Day of October, 1759, in the Thirty-third Year of the Reign of our Sovereign Lord GEORGE the Second, by the Grace of GOD, of Great-Britain, France and Ireland, KING, Defender of the Faith, &c.

By His Excellency's Command,

A. OLIVER, Secr'y.

No. 1170.

By His EXCELLENCY

THOMAS POWNALL, Esq;

Captain-General and Governor in Chief, in and over His Majesty's Province of the Massachusetts-Bay in New England, and Vice-Admiral of the same.

A BRIEF.

IT having pleased Almighty GOD to permit a Fire to break out in the Town of Boston, on the 20th Instant, and so rage in such manner as to elude all Means for suppressing the same, until it had in a few Hours destroyed (according to the best Information that can be obtained in the present Confusion) One Hundred and seventy-four Dwelling-Houses, and as many Warehouses, Shops and other Buildings; the Loss whereof, with the Furniture and Goods therein, amount, at a moderate Computation, to One Hundred Thousand Pounds Sterling; and Two Hundred and Twenty Families are turned out of Doors, the greatest Part of whom are by this Misfortune so reduced as to be rendered incapable of subsisting themselves, and stand in need of immediate Relief:

THE two Houses having, upon my Recommendation, taken these calamitous Circumstances into Consideration, and judging the Distress to be so great and extensive as to require the Charity of all well disposed Persons to mitigate and relieve the same, have desired me to send BRIEFS throughout the Province, strongly recommending the unhappy Case of these poor People to the Inhabitants, and calling upon them for a general Contribution for their Relief:

I DO hereby therefore most earnestly recommend it to all, to express their Christian Benevolence on this Occasion, by contributing in Proportion to the Means with which GOD has blessed them, and to the Distresses of these worthy Objects of their Charity; and do further desire, That what may be collected on this Occasion may be remitted to the Select-Men and Overseers of the Poor of the Town of Boston, to be by them distributed among the Sufferers, as they in their Discretion shall judge proper.

AND I do require the Ministers of the several Churches and Parishes within this Province to read or cause to be read this Brief to their respective Congregations, on the First Lord's-Day after they receive the same, or on the Day appointed for a General FAST the Third of April next, as they shall judge most convenient.

GIVEN at the Council-Chamber in Boston the Twenty-fourth Day of March, 1760, in the Thirty-third Year of the Reign of our Sovereign Lord GEORGE the Second, by the Grace of GOD, of Great-Britain, France and Ireland, KING, Defender of the Faith, &c.

By His Excellency's Command,

A. OLIVER, Secr'y.

An Account of the Fire at Harvard-College, in Cambridge; with the Loſs ſuſtained thereby.

CAMBRIDGE, Jan. 25. 1764.

LAST night HARVARD COLLEGE, ſuffered the moſt ruinous loſs it ever met with ſince its foundation. In the middle of a very tempeſtuous night, a ſevere cold ſtorm of ſnow attended with high wind, we were awaked by the alarm of fire. Harvard Hall, the only one of our ancient buildings which ſtill remained,* and the repoſitory of our moſt valuable treaſures, the public LIBRARY and Philoſophical APPARATUS, was ſeen in flames. As it was a time of vacation, in which the ſtudents were all diſperſed, not a ſingle perſon was left in any of the Colleges, except two or three in that part of Maſſachuſetts moſt diſtant from Harvard, where the fire could not be perceived till the whole ſurrounding air began to be illuminated by it: When it was diſcovered from the town, it had riſen to a degree of violence that defied all oppoſition. It is conjectured to have begun in a beam under the hearth in the library, where a fire had been kept for the uſe of the General Court, now reſiding and ſitting here, by reaſon of the Small-Pox at Boſton: from thence it burſt out into the Library. The books eaſily ſubmitted to the fury of the flame, which with a rapid and irreſiſtable progreſs made its way into the Apparatus-Chamber, and ſpread thro' the whole building. In a very ſhort time, this venerable Monument of the Piety of our Anceſtors was turn'd into an heap of ruins. The other Colleges, Stoughton-Hall and Maſſachuſetts-Hall, were in the utmoſt hazard of ſharing the ſame fate. The wind driving the flaming cinders directly upon their roofs, they blazed out ſeveral times in different places; nor could they have been ſaved by all the help the Town could afford, had it not been for the aſſiſtance of the Gentlemen of the General Court, among whom his Excellency the Governor was very active; who, notwithſtanding the extreme rigor of the ſeaſon, exerted themſelves in ſupplying the town Engine with water, which they were obliged to fetch at laſt from a diſtance, two of the College pumps being then rendered uſeleſs. Even the new and beautiful Holiis-Hall, though it was on the windward ſide, hardly eſcaped. It ſtood ſo near to Harvard, that the flames actually ſcorched it, and, if they had not been immediately ſuppreſſed, muſt have carried it.

But by the Bleſſing of God on the vigorous efforts of the aſſiſtants, the ruin was confined to Harvard-Hall; and there, beſides the deſtruction of the private property of thoſe who had chambers in it, the public loſs is very great; perhaps, irreparable. The Library and the Apparatus, which for many years had been growing, and were now judged to be the beſt furniſhed in America, are annihilated. But to give the public a more diſtinct idea of the loſs, we ſhall exhibit a ſummary view of the general contents of each, as far as we can, on a ſudden, recollect them.

Of the LIBRARY.

IT contained—The Holy Scriptures in almoſt all languages, with the moſt valuable Expoſitors and Commentators, ancient and modern:—The whole Library of the late learned Dr. Lightfoot, which at his death he bequeathed to this College, and contained the Targums, Talmuds, Rabbins, Polygot, and other valuable tracts relative to oriental literature, which is taught here: The library of the late eminent Dr. Theophilus Gale: —All the Fathers, Greek and Latin, in their beſt editions. — A great number of tracts in defence of revealed religion, wrote by the moſt maſterly hands, in the laſt and preſent century — Sermons of the moſt celebrated Engliſh divines, both of the eſtabliſhed national church and proteſtant diſſenters:—Tracts upon all the branches of polemic divinity.—The donation of the venerable Society for propagating the Goſpel in foreign parts, conſiſting of a great many volumes of tracts againſt Popery, publiſhed in the Reigns of Charles II. and James II. the Boyleian lectures, and other the moſt eſteemed Engliſh ſermons:—A valuable collection of modern theological treatiſes, preſented by the Right Rev. Dr. Sherlock, late Lord Biſhop of London, the Rev. Dr. Hales, F. R. S. and Dr. Wilſon of London:—A vaſt number of philological tracts, containing the rudiments of almoſt all languages, ancient and modern:—The Hebrew, Greek and Roman antiquities.—The Greek and Roman Claſſics, preſented by the late excellent and catholic-ſpirited Biſhop Berkeley; moſt of them the beſt editions:—A large Collection of Hiſtory and biographical tracts, ancient and modern.—Diſſertations on various Political ſubjects—The Tranſactions of the Royal Society, Academy of Sciences in France, Acta Eruditorum, Miſcellanea curioſa, the works of Boyle and Newton, with a great variety of other mathematical and philoſophical treatiſes.—A collection of the moſt approved Medical Authors, chiefly preſented by Mr. James, of the iſland of Jamaica; to which Dr. Mead and other Gentlemen made very conſiderable additions):—Alſo Anatomical cuts and two compleat Skeletons of different ſexes. This collection would have been very ſerviceable to a Profeſſor of Phyſic and Anatomy, when the revenues of the College ſhould have been ſufficient to ſubſiſt a gentleman in this character.—A few ancient and valuable Manuſcripts in different languages—A pair of excellent new Globes of the largeſt ſize, preſented by Andrew Oliver, jun. Eſq;—A variety of Curioſities natural and artificial, both of American and foreign produce.—A font of Greek types (which, as we had not yet a printing-office, was repoſited in the library) preſented by our great benefactor the late worthy Thomas Holl, Eſq; of London; whoſe picture, as large as the life, and inſtitutions for two Profeſſorſhips and ten Scholarſhips, periſhed in the flames——Some of the moſt conſiderable additions that had been made of late years to the library, came from other branches of this generous Family.

The library contained above five thouſand volumes, all which were conſumed, except a few books in the hands of the members of the houſe; and two donations, one made by our late honorable Lieutenant Governor Dummer, to the value of 50 l. ſterling; the other of 56 volumes, by the preſent worthy Thomas Hollis, Eſq; F. R. S. of London, to whom we have been annually obliged for valuable additions to our late library: Which donations, being but lately received, had not the proper boxes prepared for them; and ſo eſcaped the general ruin.

As the library records are burnt, no doubt ſome valuable benefactions have been omitted in this account, which was drawn up only by memory.

Of the APPARATUS.

WHEN the late worthy THOMAS HOLLIS, Eſq; of London founded a Profeſſorſhip of Mathematics and Philoſophy in Harvard-College, he ſent a fine Apparatus for Experimental Philoſophy in its ſeveral Branches.

Under the head of Mechanics, there were machines for experiments of falling bodies, of the centre of gravity, and of centrifugal forces;—the ſeveral mechanical powers, balances of different ſorts, levers, pullies, axes in peritrochio, wedges, compound engines; with curious models of each in braſs.

In Hydroſtatics, very nice balances, jars and bottles of various ſizes fitted with braſs caps, veſſels for proving the grand hydroſtatic Paradox, ſiphons, glaſs models of pumps, hydroſtatic balance, &c.

In Pneumatics, there was a number of different tubes for the Torricellian experiment, a large double-barrell'd Air-pump, with a great variety of receivers of different ſizes and ſhapes; ſyringes, exhauſting and condenſing; Barometer, Thermometer;—with many other articles.

In Optics, there were ſeveral ſorts of mirrors, concave, convex, cylindric; Lenſes of different ſort; inſtruments for proving the fundamental law of refraction; Priſms, with the whole apparatus for the Newtonian theory of light and colors; the camera obſcura, &c.

And a variety of inſtruments for miſcellaneous purpoſes.

THE following articles were afterwards ſent us by Mr. Thomas Hollis, Nephew to that generous Gentleman, viz. an Orrery, an armillary Sphere, and a box of Microſcopes; all of exquiſite workmanſhip.

For Aſtronomy, we had before been ſupplied with Teleſcopes of different lengths; one of 24 feet; and a braſs Quadrant of 2 foot radius, carrying a Teleſcope of a greater length; which formerly belonged to the celebrated Dr. Halley. We had alſo the moſt uſeful inſtruments for Dialling,—and for Surveying, a braſs Semicircle, with plain ſights and magnetic needle. Alſo, a curious Teleſcope, with a complete apparatus for taking the difference of Level; lately preſented by Chriſtopher Kilby, Eſq;

Many very valuable additions have of late years been made to this apparatus by ſeveral generous benefactors, whom it would be ingratitude not to commemorate here, as no veſtiges of their donations remain. We are under obligation to mention particularly, the late Sir Peter Warren, Knt. Sir Henry Frankland, Bart. Hon. Jonathan Belcher, Eſq; Lt. Governor of Nova-Scotia; Thomas Hancock, Eſq; James Bowdoin, Eſq; Ezekiel Goldthwait, Eſq; John Hancock, A. M. of Boſton, and Mr. Gilbert Harriſon of London, Merchant. From theſe Gentlemen we received fine reflecting Teleſcopes of different magnifying powers; and adapted to different obſervations; Microſcopes of the ſeveral ſorts now in uſe; Hadley's Quadrant fitted in a new manner; a nice Variation Compaſs, and Dipping needle; with inſtruments for the ſeveral magnetical and electrical experiments—all new, and of excellent workmanſhip.——ALL DESTROYED!

Cambridge, Jan. 26. 1764. As the General Aſſembly have this day chearfully and unanimouſly voted to rebuild Harvard Hall, it encourages us to hope, that the LIBRARY and APPARATUS will alſo be repaired by the private munificence of thoſe who with well to America, have a regard for New-England, and know the importance of literature to the Church and State.

BOSTON: PRINTED BY R. AND S. DRAPER:

1764.

* Harvard-Hall, 42 feet broad, 97 long, and four ſtories high, was founded A. D. 1672.

Liberty, Property, and no Excise.

A Poem,

Compos'd on occasion of the SIGHT seen on the GREAT TREES, (so called) in BOSTON, NEW-ENGLAND, on the 14th of AUGUST, 1765.

LET Albion's sons in praise their tongues employ;
New-England smile, and Boston shout for joy:
"I spite of knaves, their politics and wit,
She still enjoys her LIBERTY and PITT.
She reels secure from ev'ry foreign foe,
Derides their plots, and sees their overthrow;
And soon shall see the wretch completely curs'd
Who strove to STAMP her glory in the dust.
"Freedom, (she cries) I cannot cringe to knaves,
"My foes are free, and never will be slaves:"
Let tyrants rule with arbitrary sway,
Villains command, and whining fools obey:
Let daftards live in infamy and shame,
While Britons fight for liberty and fame:
Let all her foes like bees prepare to swarm;
Old Pluto rage, and Purgatory storm:
Let Charon rade his oars and long-boat take,
And force with fury down the torrid lake.
Speak Proserpine, thy will shall be obey'd,
Bid ev'ry fiend forlak the gloomy shade:
Give these commands to each infernal ghost,
"Go spit your venom on the British coast;
"Haste there and spread contention wide and far,
"Perplex her isle, and set her sons at war:
"Then to America with vengeance go,
"Let them in slavery own the powers below."
Suppose this done, and all the winged bands
At this new world with thunder in their hands:
Our hardy youth would still their force repel,
Defeat their wiles and drive them back to hell;
These sons of Mars their courage would confound,
A conquest gain and still maintain their ground.
Let hosts of hell and devils be compell'd to join,
Our sovereign lives and God supports his throne:
Thus blast his foes in ev'ry base design
All gracious heaven, and bless the royal line.
O give us favor in our monarch's eyes,
Defend our rights, remove the late EXCISE:
Let truth prevail and fierce oppression cease,
And bid our Prophet speak the words of peace.
Lo! here he comes, lofty he seems to tread,
Now rolls his eyes, now bows his rev'rend head:
He like a God appears in form divine,
Whose very aspect speaks some deep design;
Hither he comes, on purpose to relate
Each sacred truth and tell some hidden fate,
"Boston, (he cries) your woes are at an end,
"Your foe shall fall and times shall quickly mend;
"With shame overwhelm'd he soon shall hide his face,
"Then hark while I predict the time and place.
"The day now dawns, the gloomy night is spent,
"And soon your eyes shall see the grand event.
"See fair Aurora from her couch arise,
"While cheerful blushes paints the morning skies:
"The shades are chas'd, the lingring stars are fled,
"And yonder Phœbus lifts his golden head:
"(Then cries the Prophet) I must haste away,
"The Gods command and mortals must obey."
No more I heard from out his sacred mouth,
He took his leave and went towards the South;
Then I beheld amazing wonders there,
Saw human shapes and monsters in the air.
A stately elm appear'd before my eyes,
Whose lofty branches seem'd to touch the skies;
It's limbs were bent with more than common fruit,
It bore the Devil, G——, and B—te.
Well then, said I, my doubts are wholly fled,
I find the truth of what the father said:
But while I stood to gaze upon the tree,
Another and another came to see;
Each moment I beheld a diff'rent face,
For on they prest 'till thousands fill'd the place,
Here stands a child and looks with wond'ring eyes,
And there a champion of gigantic size;
Yonder a maid at humbler distance stands,
And here a jilt with lifted eyes and hands.

This pleasing prospect entertains the throng,
All join as one, and thus begin their song,
"With grateful joy, O Boston, now behold
"Those truths fulfill'd, which lately were foretold:
"With thankful hearts now see the villains hung,
"Who hate their country, and would sell their king:
"Behold the man, whose heart was set on gain
"And view the wretch, who with'd some tyrant reign."
Thus I observ'd they entertain'd the day,
In songs and that they past the hours away;
Now Sol retires, and journies down the West,
And weary nature seems in sable dress:
And now a hero lifts his voice aloud,
Stretches his hand, and speaks to all the crowd,
"Hear me, (he cries, and be not too severe,
"Cease be the man that leaves the bodies here
"Expos'd to all the dangers of the night,
"I bid bear them hence with every funeral right."
Thus having spoke, they all with willing hands
Began to execute their chief's commands:
With rapid haste some to the tree repair,
And on their shoulders bear a ladder there.
One draws his knife, and running to their aid,
Ascends the limbs, that bear each lifeless shade;
Thus as the ropes in prefence of them all,
And as he cuts the ghastly effigies fall.
Down on the earth in horrid form they lie,
A frightful sight to each beholding eye.
What now, (said I) is all compassion fled?
Can none be found, that will relieve the dead?
Their chief reply'd, "Go place them on the bier,
"Prepare yourselves and quickly bring them here."
This done, he cries, "Let ev'ry man resort
"In solemn order with the corps to court."
"March then, (said he) in one united throng,
"And as you march, be this the funeral song:
"Great Jove decrees, and go their morials must;
"This end in earth, and STAMP 'em in the dust."
Thus as they move, the words are sung by all,
Down to the vale and thro' the pompous hall:
Soon after this arose a grand debate,
(Such as attend the funerals of the great)
And wild disorder seizes all the band,
Each some advance, while others make a stand.
One bids them halt, another "still march forth
"And visit all the regions of the North"
A third proclaims, "Let thefe be first convey'd
"In peaceful silence to the Stamp Shade"
Then rose their head, (the regent of the night)
"Alas! our hoft is in a shameful plight:
"Is this the way to get a hero's name
"The road to honor and immortal fame?
"Cease, laughing then, let each in order stand,
"Join arm to arm, like one external band,
"Then here (he cries) be all contention fled,
"Come follow on, your chief was the head."
Thus having spoke, all hear the word rejoice,
And forth they move; (the champion leads the van)
All seem impatient to obey his will,
And bend their course for the appointed hill,
Whose lofty summit once contain'd a fort,
To this they haste and quickly leave the court.
Freedom and friendship centers to each soul,
They chear and sing without the least controul
Here then we find no odious facts acts,
None could object, and nothing dare oppose,
(Nothing, except a stately EDIFICE,
Thus they their course, but soon they down with this,
Low in the dust, they made the structure lie,
Then STAMPT the bricks, and bore the wood away,
Now from the ruins ev'ry one retires
Up to the manor and raise the funeral fire.

* Supposed to be built for a STAMP-OFFICE.

The year is conjectural, and may have been in any year after 1765, when the two sections of the town entered into a truce and united in a peaceable celebration of the night. The cut is the same as appears in 1769. In NYHS is a pamphlet of 4 pages entitled: The | Procession | or, the | Burning of the Pope | In Effigie, | at | Temple-Bar, or in Smithfield, | On the 17th of November 1681. | Being | Queen Elizabeth's Birthday. | Describing | The several Pageants, and rare Devices of | the Pope, Cardinals, Jesuits,

Far exceeding whatever has been ex- | posed in this nature. With the signification of the seve- | ral Hieroglyphicks. Humbly dedicated to his Holiness. [London:] Printed for William Goble. 1681. The date of Elizabeth's birth was September 7, 1533, but November 17 was "usually observed as the Anniversary or Birth-day of the ever Renowned Princess" etc. Guy Fawkes day was November 5, but I am unable to learn when the ceremony of burning the Pope was connected with the Queen's birthday. The Oxford Dictionary states that the Effigy was burned on the anniversary of the gunpowder Plot, on Queen Elizabeth's night, "or at other times," and gives, as the earliest notice, an extract from Evelyn, 1673. Captain Francis Goelet in 1750 saw "the Devil and the Pope &c. Carried about by the Mob represented in Effegy very drole soone after see two more of them, but the Justices feareing some Outrages may be Committed Put a Stop to them." N. E. Hist. Gen. Register, XXIV. 61. John Adams (II. 201) speaks of "popes and bonfires" in Salem in 1766.

Cambridge, October 22, 1774.

FROM a Conſideration of the Continuance of the Goſpel among us, and the Smiles of Divine Providence upon us with Regard to the Seaſons of the Year, and the general Health which has been enjoyed; and in particular, from a Conſideration of the Union which ſo remarkably prevails not only in this Province, but through the Continent at this alarming Criſis.

IT is RESOLVED, as the Senſe of this Congreſs, That it is highly proper that a Day of PUBLIC THANKSGIVING ſhould be obſerved throughout this Province; and it is accordingly recommended to the ſeveral Religious Aſſemblies in the Province, that Thurſday the Fifteenth Day of December next, be obſerved as a Day of THANKSGIVING, to render Thanks to Almighty God for all the Bleſſings we enjoy. At the ſame Time, we think it incumbent on this People to humble themſelves before God on Account of their Sins, for which he hath been pleaſed in his righteous Judgment to ſuffer ſo great a Calamity to befal us, as the preſent Controverſy between Great-Britain and the Colonies; as alſo to implore the Divine Bleſſing upon us, that by the Aſſiſtance of his Grace we may be enabled to reform whatever is amiſs among us, that ſo God may be pleaſed to continue to us the Bleſſings we enjoy, and remove the Tokens of his Diſpleaſure, by cauſing Harmony and Union to be reſtored between Great-Britain and theſe Colonies, that we may again rejoice in the Smiles of our Sovereign and the Poſſeſſion of thoſe Privileges which have been tranſmitted to us, and have the hopeful Proſpect that they ſhall be handed down intire to Poſterity, under the Proteſtant Succeſſion in the illuſtrious Houſe of Hanover.

By Order of the Provincial Congreſs,

JOHN HANCOCK, Preſident.

From Thos Hinckley Esq. Lent by Samuel Thompson to Communicate in order to Clearly given Dunlap Sports Aug 1st 1775

The Addreſs, Petition, and Remonſtrance, of the City of LONDON, to the KING, in Favour of the AMERICANS, and their Reſolves, preſented to his Majeſty, July 5, 1775.

LONDON, July 6.

YESTERDAY the Sheriffs waited on his Majeſty at St. James's, when Mr. Sheriff Plomer addreſſed the King in the following words, "May it pleaſe your Majeſty, we are ordered by the Mayor, Aldermen and Livery of the city of London in Common Hall aſſembled, to wait upon your Majeſty, humbly to deliver into your Majeſty's hands, in Their name, their Reſolutions agreed to in Common Hall, on the 24th of June laſt, and of the 5th inſtant." Mr Sheriff Plomer then delivered a copy of the following Reſolutions, only into the King's hand, which he received without ſaying a word.

At a meeting of the Livery of London, in Common Hall aſſembled, on Tueſday, July 4, 1775.

Reſolved, That the King is bound to hear the Petitions of his People, it being the undoubted right of the ſubject to be heard, and not a matter of grace and favour.

Reſolved, That his Majeſty's anſwer is a direct denial of the right of this court to have their petitions heard.

Reſolved, That ſuch denial renders the right of petitioning the throne, recognized and eſtabliſhed by the Revolution, of no effect.

Reſolved, That whoever adviſed his Majeſty, directly or indirectly, to refuſe hearing the humble Addreſs, Remonſtrance and Petition of this court, on the throne, is equally an enemy to the happineſs and ſecurity of the King, and to the peace and liberties of the people.

Reſolved, That the following inſtructions be given to our Repreſentatives in Parliament.

Gentlemen,

You are here inſtructed by the Livery in Common Hall aſſembled, to move immediately on the next meeting of parliament, for an humble addreſs from the Houſe of Commons to his Majeſty, requeſting to know who were the adviſers of thoſe fatal meaſures that have baniſhed peace and arbitary power in America, and have plunged us into a moſt unnatural civil war, to the ſubverſion of the fundamental principles of Engliſh liberty, the ruin of our moſt valuable commerce, and the deſtruction of his Majeſty's ſubjects. To know who were the adviſers of a meaſure ſo dangerous to his Majeſty's happineſs, and the rights of his people, as refuſing to hear the petitions and complaints of his ſubjects. You are further inſtructed, gentlemen, to move for an impeachment of the authors and adviſers of thoſe meaſures, that by bringing them to public juſtice, evil counſellors may be removed from before the King, his throne may be eſtabliſhed, the rights of the people be vindicated, and the whole empire reſtored to the enjoyment of peace, liberty, and ſafety.

To the King's Moſt Excellent Majeſty.

The Addreſs, Petition, and Remonſtrance, &c.

Moſt gracious Sovereign,

WE your Majeſty's moſt faithful ſubjects the Lord Mayor, Aldermen, and Livery of the city of London, in Common Hall aſſembled, are compelled again to diſturb your Majeſty's repoſe with our complaints.

We have already expreſſed to your Majeſty our abhorrence of the tyrannical meaſures purſued againſt our fellow-ſubjects in America, as well as of the men, who ſecretly adviſe, and of the miniſters, who execute theſe meaſures.

We deſire to repeat again, that the power contended for over the colonies, under the ſpecious name of dignity, is to all intents and purpoſes, deſpotiſm; that the exerciſe of deſpotick power in any part of the empire, is inconſiſtent with the character and ſafety of this country.

As we would not ſuffer any man, or body of men to eſtabliſh arbitrary power over us, we cannot acquieſce in any attempt to force it upon any part of our fellow ſubjects; we are perſuaded that by the ſacred, unalterable right of human nature, as well as by every principle of the conſtitution; the Americans ought to enjoy peace, liberty, and ſafety; that whatever power invades theſe rights, ought to be reſiſted; we hold ſuch reſiſtance, in vindication of their conſtitutional rights, to be the indiſpenſable duty to God, from whom thoſe rights are derived to themſelves, who cannot be ſafe and happy without them; and to their poſterity, who have a right to claim this inheritance at their hands unviolated and unimpaired.

We have already remonſtrated to your Majeſty, that theſe meaſures were big with all the conſequences, which could alarm a free and commercial people; a deep and perhaps fatal wound to commerce; the ruin of manufactures; the diminution of the revenue, and conſequent increaſe of taxes; the alienation of the colonies, and the blood of your Majeſty's ſubjects.

Unhappily, Sire, the worſt of theſe apprehenſions is now realized in all its horror: We have ſeen with equal dread and concern, a civil war commenced in America, by your Majeſty's commander in chief: Will your Majeſty be pleaſed to conſider what muſt be the ſituation of your people here, who have nothing now to expect from America, but Cataracts of blood, and mutual bills of their ſlaughtered fellow ſubjects.

Every moment's proſecution of this fatal war, may looſen irreparably the bonds of that connection, by which the glory and ſafety of the Britiſh empire depends.

If any thing could add to the alarm of theſe events it is your Majeſty having declared your confidence in the wiſdom of men, a majority of whom are notoriouſly bribed to betray their conſtituents and country. It is the misfortune of your Majeſty, it is the misfortune and grief of the people to have a grand council and a repreſentative, under an undue and dangerous influence; an influence which, though procured by your miniſters, is dangerous to your Majeſty, by deceiving you, and to your people, by betraying them.

In ſuch a ſituation, your petitioners are bound to declare to your Majeſty, that they cannot and will not ſit unconcerned; that they will exert themſelves at every hazard, to bring thoſe who have adviſed thoſe ruinous meaſures to the juſtice of this country and of the much injured colonies.

We have already ſignified our perſuaſion that theſe evils originate in the ſecret advice of thoſe, who are equally enemic to your Majeſty's title, and to the rights of your people. Your petitioners are now compelled to ſay, that your throne is ſurrounded by men avowedly inimical to thoſe principles on which your Majeſty poſſeſſes the crown, and the people their liberties: At a time of ſuch difficulty and danger, public confidence is eſſential to your Majeſty's repoſe, and to the preſervation of your people; ſuch confidence cannot be obtained by miniſters and adviſers who want wiſdom, and hold principles incompatible with freedom; nor can any hope of relief be expected from a parliament, choſen under a national deluſion, inſidiouſly raiſed, by miſrepreſentations touching the true ſtate of America, and artfully embraced by a precipitate diſſolution.

Your petitioners therefore again pray and beſeech your Majeſty to diſmiſs your preſent miniſters and adviſers from your perſon and counſels forever; to diſſolve parliament, who by various acts of cruelty and injuſtice, have manifeſted a ſpirit of perſecution againſt our brethren in America, and given their ſanction to popery and arbitary power; to put your future confidence in miniſters, whoſe known and unſhaken attachment to the conſtitution, joined to their wiſdom and integrity, may enable your Majeſty to ſettle this alarming diſpute upon the ſure, honourable, and laſting foundation of general liberty.

A CIRCUMSTANTIAL ACCOUNT

Of an Attack that happened on the 19th of April 1775, on his MAJESTY'S Troops,

By a Number of the People of the Province of MASSACHUSETTS-BAY.

ON Tuesday the 18th of April, about half past 10 at Night, Lieutenant Colonel Smith of the 10th Regiment, embarked from the Common at Boston, with the Grenadiers and Light-Infantry of the Troops there, and landed on the oppoſite Side, from whence he began his March towards Concord, where he was ordered to deſtroy a Magazine of Military Stores, depoſited there for the Uſe of an Army to be aſſembled, in Order to act againſt his Majeſty, and his Government. The Colonel called his Officers together, and gave Orders, that the Troops ſhould not fire, unleſs fired upon; and after marching a few Miles, detached ſix Companies of Light Infantry, under the Command of Major Pitcairn, to take Poſſeſſion of two Bridges on the other Side of Concord: Soon after they heard many Signal Guns, and the ringing of Alarm Bells repeatedly, which convinced them that the Country was riſing to oppoſe them, and that it was a preconcerted Scheme to oppoſe the King's Troops, whenever there ſhould be a favorable Opportunity for it. About 3 o'Clock the next Morning the Troops being advanced within two Miles of Lexington, Intelligence was received that about Five Hundred Men in Arms, were aſſembled, and determined to oppoſe the King's Troops, and on Major Pitcairn's galloping up to the Head of the advanced Companies, two Officers informed him that a Man (advanced from thoſe that were aſſembled) had preſented his Muſquit and attempted to ſhoot them, but the Piece flaſhed in the Pan. On this the Major gave directions to the Troops to move forward, but on no Account to fire, nor even to attempt it without Orders. When they arrived at the End of the Village, they obſerved about 200 armed Men, drawn up on a Green, and when the Troops came within a Hundred Yards of them, they began to file off towards ſome Stone Walls, on their right Flank: The Light Infantry obſerving this, ran after them; the Major inſtantly called to the Soldiers not to fire, but to ſurround and diſarm them; ſome of them who had jumped over a Wall, then fired four or five Shot at the Troops, wounded a Man of the 10th Regiment, and the Major's Horſe in two Places, and at the ſame Time ſeveral Shots were fired from a Meeting-Houſe on the left:* Upon this, without any Order or Regularity, the Light Infantry began a ſcattered Fire, and killed ſeveral of the Country People; but were ſilenced as ſoon as the Authority of their Officers could make them.

After this, Colonel Smith marched up with the Rear-Guard of the Detachment, and the whole Body proceeded to Concord, where they arrived about 9 o'Clock, without any Thing further happening; but vaſt numbers of armed People were ſeen aſſembling on all the Heights: while Colonel Smith with the Grenadiers, and Part of the Light Infantry remained at Concord, to ſearch for Cannon, &c. there; he detached Captain Parſons with ſix Light Companies to ſecure a Bridge at ſome Diſtance from Concord, and to proceed from thence to certain Houſes, where it was ſuppoſed there was Cannon, and Ammunition; Captain Parſons in purſuance of theſe Orders, poſted three Companies at the Bridge, and on ſome Heights near it, under the Command of Captain Laurie of the 43d Regiment; and with the Remainder went and deſtroyed ſome Cannon Wheels, Powder, and Ball; the People ſtill continued encreaſing on the Heights; and in about an Hour after, a large Body of them began to move towards the Bridge, the Light Companies of the 4th and 10th then deſcended, and joined Captain Laurie, the People continued to advance in great Numbers; and fired upon the Kings Troops, killed three Men, wounded four Officers, one Serjeant, and four private Men, upon which (after returning the fire) Captain Laurie and his Officers, thought it prudent to retreat towards the Main Body at Concord, and were ſoon joined by two Companies of Grenadiers; when Captain Parſons returned with the three Companies over the Bridge, they obſerved three Soldiers on the Ground one of them ſcalped, his Head much mangled, and his Ears cut off, tho' not quite dead; a Sight which ſtruck the Soldiers with Horror; Captain Parſons marched on and joined the Main Body, who were only waiting for his coming up, to march back to Boſton; Colonel Smith had executed his Orders, without Oppoſition, by deſtroying all the Military Stores he could find; both the Colonel, and Major Pitcairn, having taken all poſſible Pains to convince the Inhabitants that no Injury was intended them, and that if they opened their Doors when required, to ſearch for ſaid Stores, not the ſlighteſt Miſchief ſhould be done; neither had any of the People the leaſt Occaſion to complain, but they were ſulky, and one of them even ſtruck Major Pitcairn. Except upon Captain Laurie, at the Bridge, no Hoſtilities happened from the Affair at Lexington, until the Troops began their March back. As ſoon as the Troops had got out of the Town of Concord, they received a heavy Fire from all Sides, from Walls, Fences, Houſes, Trees, Barns, &c. which continued without Intermiſſion, till they met the firſt Brigade, with two Field Pieces, near Lexington; ordered out under the Command of Lord Percy to ſupport them; (advice having been received about 7 o'Clock next Morning, that Signals had been made, and Expreſſes gone out to alarm the Country, and that the People were riſing to attack the Troops under Colonel Smith.) Upon the Firing of the Field Pieces, the People's Fire was for a while ſilenced, but as they ſtill continued to encreaſe greatly in Numbers, they fired again as before, from all Places were they could find Cover, upon the whole Body, and continued ſo doing for the Space of Fifteen Miles: Notwithſtanding their Numbers they did not attack openly during the Whole Day, but kept under Cover on all Occaſions. The Troops were very much fatigued, the greater Part of them having been under Arms all Night, and made a March of upwards of Forty Miles before they arrived at Charlſtown, from whence they were ferryed over to Boſton.

The Troops had above Fifty killed, and many more wounded. Reports are various about the Loſs ſuſtained by the Country People, ſome make it very conſiderable, others not ſo much.

Thus this unfortunate Affair has happened through the Raſhneſs and Imprudence of a few People, who began Firing on the Troops at Lexington.

* During this Time Colonel Smith and Major Pitcairn, with the greateſt Difficulty, kept the Soldiers from forcing into the Meeting-Houſe and putting all thoſe in it to Death.

A PROCLAMATION.

THE Frailty of human Nature, the Wonders of Providence, and the numerous Dangers which have and been through the Course of Life, have call'd upon every Community to publish from Time to Time, and to renew, such Declarations as may be necessary for the Preservation of their Civil Government.

As the Happiness of the People is the End of all Compact, so it is the Duty of the People, as the only Foundation of it, in Person Meeting, and in their Annual Elections, to express their Sentiments concerning the Form of Government, every Exercise of Sovereignty, especially in the Legislative Body of the People, is Power, and not Tyranny.

It is a Maxim, that in every Government, there must be a Power somewhere, whose Will is Law, and uncontrollable Power: But that those to whom it is entrusted are the Body of the People, and it never was, nor can be delegated to one Man or a few, the Great Creator having never given to Men a Right to vest others with Authority over them, unlimited either in Duration or Degree.

When Kings, Shadows of Government, or Legislatures therefore instead of exercising the Powers committed to them, according to the Principles, Forms and Proportions fixed by the Constitution, and established by the original Compact, usurp those Powers to the Purposes of Oppression and Lawless Lust, and by Force subvert the Constitution, instead of preserving it, Resistance and Opposition of the People, so they are in Duty bound to do, are justified with a sacred Regard to the Law of Nature, and ought to be settled.

The Administration of Great Britain declining equally the Justice, Humanity and Magnanimity of their Ancestors, and the Rights, Liberties and Courage of all Mankind, in a Design for a Conquest more inhuman, more unjustifiable, more Tyrannical, and more unconstitutional, than that founded in the Conquest of the Peruvians, but in the more Wicked Action a Thousand Leagues from Us, whom we have not, and have endeavoured to establish this Supremacy over Us, against our Consent, for all Cases whatsoever.

The Colonies during this Period, have received in every peaceable Reliance in a free Constitution, by Petitions and Remonstrances, from an Injustice; which has been not only denied to them, but they have been treated with unexampled Insolency and Contempt; and after such open War as the most atrocious cruel and sanguinary Kind has been commenced against them. Treason, open, manly and undisguised Resistance has hitherto been made. Thirteen Colonies are now firmly united in the Conduct of it a most just and necessary War, under the wise Councils of their Congress.

It is the Will of Providence, for wise, right, and gracious Ends that this Colony should have been singled out, by the Enemies of America, as the first Object both of their Envy and their Revenge; and after having been made the Subject of several mercifull and unprecedented Statutes, one of which was intended to subvert our Constitution by Charter, is made the Scene of War.

No effectual Resistance to the System of Tyranny prepared for us could be made without either instant Recourse to Arms, or a temporary Suspension of the ordinary Powers of Government, and Tribunals of Justice: To the last of which Evils, in Hopes of a speedy Reconciliation with Great-Britain, upon equitable Terms, the Congress advised Us to submit. — And Massachusetts-Bay is a Phenomenon, without Example in the political World, a large and populous Colony, subsisting in great Decency and Order, for more than a Year, under such a Suspension of Government.

But as our Enemies have proceeded to such barbarous Extremities, commencing Hostilities upon the good People of this Colony, and with unprecedented Malice exerting their Power to spread the Calamities of Fire, Sword and Famine through the Land, and no reasonable Prospect remains of a speedy Reconciliation on such Great-Britain, the Congress have resolved,

"That no Obedience being due to the Act of Parliament for altering the Charter of the Colony of Massachusetts-Bay, nor to a Governor or Lieutenant Governor, who will not observe the Directions of, but endeavor to subvert that Charter, the Governor and Lieutenant Governor of that Colony, are to be considered as absent, and their Offices vacant, and as there is no Council there, and Inconveniences arising from the Suspension of the Powers of Government are intolerable, especially at a Time when General Gage hath actually levied War, and is carrying on Hostilities against His Majesty's peaceable and loyal Subjects of that Colony, that, in order to conform as near as may be to the Spirit and Substance of the Charter, it be recommended to the Provincial Convention, to write Letters to the Inhabitants of the several Places which are entitled to Representation in Assembly, requesting them to chuse such Representatives, and that the Assembly when chosen, do elect Counsellors; and that such Assembly and Council, exercise the Powers of Government until a Governor of his Majesty's Appointment will consent to govern the Colony, according to its Charter."

In Pursuance of which Advice, the good People of this Colony have chosen a full and free Representation of themselves, who, being convened in Assembly, have elected a Council, who, as the executive Branch of Government, have constituted necessary Officers through the Colony. The present Government, therefore, may be congratulated on the Acquisition of a Form of Government, more immediately in all it's Branches, under the Influence and Controul of the People; and therefore more free and happy than was enjoyed by their Ancestors: But as a Government so popular can be supported only by a powerful Knowledge and Virtue, in the Body of the People, it is the Duty of all Ranks, to promote the Means of Education, for the rising Generation, as well as true Religion, Purity of Manners, and Integrity of Life, among all Orders and Degrees.

As an Army has become necessary for our Defence, and, in all free States the Civil must preside over and controul the Military Power, the major Part of the Council have appointed Magistrates and Courts of Justice in every County, while Happiness is so connected with that of the People, that it is difficult to suppose they can abuse their Trust. The Powers of a Jury to free those Laws inforced, which are necessary for the Preservation of Peace, Virtue and good Order. And the Great and General Court esteem it an Instance that all necessary Support and Assistance be given, and all proper Observance yielded to them, and will deem every Person, who shall fail of his Duty in this Respect, towards them, a Disturber of the Peace of the Colony, and deserving of exemplary Punishment.

That Piety and Virtue, which alone can secure the Freedom of any People, may be encouraged and Vice and Immorality suppressed, the Great and General Court have thought fit to give this Proclamation for commanding and enjoining it upon the good People of this Colony, that they lead sober, religious and peaceable Lives; avoiding all Blasphemie, Contempt of the Holy Scriptures, and of the Lord's Day, and all other Crimes and Misdemeanors, all Debauchery, Drunkenness, Corruption, Venality, all riotous and tumultuous Proceedings, and all Immoralities whatsoever. And that they sincerely and reverently attend the publick Worship of GOD, at all Times acknowledging with Gratitude his merciful Interposition in their Behalf, devoutly ascribing to him, as the GOD of Armies, by whose Favour and Protection alone they may hope for Success, in their present Conflict.

And all Judges, Justices, Sheriffs, Grand Jurors, Tythingmen, and all other Civil Officers within this Colony, are hereby strictly required and commanded that they contribute all in their Power, by their Advice, Example and Exertion, towards a general Reformation of Manners; and that they bring to condign Punishment, every Person, who shall commit any of the Crimes or Misdemeanors aforesaid, or that shall be guilty of any Immoralities whatsoever, and that they use their utmost Endeavours, to have the Resolves of the Congress, and the good and wholsome Laws of this Colony duly carried into Execution.

And as the Ministers of the Gospel, within this Colony, have, during the late Relaxation of the Powers of Civil Government, exerted themselves for our Safety, it is hereby recommended to them, that to continue their virtuous Labours for the Good of the People, inculcating by their public Ministry, and private Example, the Necessity of Religion, Morality, and good Order.

In Council January 19. 1776.

ORDERED, That the foregoing Proclamation be read at the Opening of every Superiour Court of Judicature, &c. and Inferiour Court of Common Pleas, and Court of General Sessions for the Peace within this Colony, by their respective Clerks; and at the annual Town Meetings in March, in each Town. And it is hereby recommended to the several Ministers of the Gospel, throughout this Colony, to read the same in their respective Assemblies on the Lord's Day next after their receiving it immediately after Divine Service.

I have not been able to give the year of issue. The first newspaper printed in Boston in the French language was the Courier de Boston, an undertaking of Paul Joseph Guérard de Nancrède, instructor in French in Harvard College. It was published for a few months in 1789. In 1792 the Courier de l'Univers appeared, but was also short-lived. Nancrède appears to be responsible for the "Prospectus" and it may have indicated a title half-way between "Boston" and "L'Univers," so I have arbitrarily given it to 1790.
